SJA Kicks Off Women's Institute of Leadership and Learning

Saint Joseph Academy has launched its very own Women's Institute of Leadership and Learning (WILL). The purpose of this Institute is to enrich, empower, and extend opportunities to the young women attending SJA. Involvement in WILL allows all female SJA students the opportunity to achieve their goals by providing internships, scholarships, and service trip programs.

The inaugural meeting of WILL took place on December 21, 2020, in the Saint Joseph Academy Media Center. The guest speaker, Ms. Gina Rullo, Editor-in-Chief of the Hammonton Gazette, provided an overview of her educational and professional journey to get to the very successful position she currently holds. Ms. Rullo challenged our students to have faith in themselves and the determination to make dreams a reality. She also announced opportunities for those interested in journalism and photojournalism to apply for internships with the Hammonton Gazette.

The Women's Institute of Leadership and Learning encourages young women to become lifelong learners as they engage in activities that help create a community of women who strengthen and support each other.

SJA is eager to find positive role models who will serve as future guest speakers and mentors. Internships in business, government, and health services are also of particular interest to our young ladies!
